She shed light on a topic that has suffered societal neglect because of .

Incest occurs when the mother or a woman with whom the son has a relationship acts in a way that is inappropriate or harmful. This typically includes touching, kissing, or having sex with the son. The mother may be a biological mother, adoptive mother, or a close family member. The son may be a biological son, adopted son, foster son, or a close family member.

Research by Leslie Margolin indicates that mother-son incest does not trigger some innate biological response, but that the effects are more directly linked to the abuse of the son. The abuse may cause psychological trauma, including anxiety, depression, and post-traumatic stress disorder. The son may also experience sexual dysfunction and difficulty forming healthy relationships.

In many cases of mother/son incest, the abuse continues throughout the son's life, often into adulthood. This can lead to a number of negative outcomes, including difficulties in forming healthy relationships, difficulty in forming a sexual identity, and a higher risk of victimization in adulthood.
